

An approximately equally spaced series of three peaks, each one being about half a unit shorter than the previous. The downward slope sections are steeper than the upward sloped ones.

